

How We Work

Turning the Page engages public school parents to become more active and effective participants in their children's education. Our current programs include:

- Community Nights
- Author Visits
- Summer Learning Experiences
- Parent Leadership programming
- Teacher professional development
- Book distributions for families' home libraries

Turning the Page programs build on each other over time, as school communities and parents, become skilled and confident in their abilities to improve educational outcomes through ongoing engagement in their children's education.
